

Jeroen Huisman

Professor. Centre for Higher Education Governance Ghent. Ghent University. Belgium.

Jeroen Huisman holds a PhD from the University of Twente, the Netherlands (1995). Before moving to Ghent in 2013, he was professor of Higher Education Management, University of Bath (2005-2013). He is editor of the journal Higher Education Policy and co-editor of the Emerald book series Theory and Method in Higher Education Research. He is an editorial board member of various higher education journals, including Studies in Higher Education (SHE), the Journal of Studies in International Education and Higher Education Research and Development (HERD). His current research interests are the (impacts of the) change from government to governance in higher education, the dynamics of organisational change, inertia and diversity in higher education, institutional management and governance, quality assurance and internationalisation and Europeanisation.

