

Setayesh Karami

CIRCLE U. University Alliance. Germany.

Setayesh Karami is a student at the Berlin School of Mind and Brain, specializing in the intersection of philosophy and cognitive neuroscience. She holds a Bachelor and Master of Arts in Philosophy and explores the belief in free will, its cognitive underpinnings, and its impact on human behavior.

With a background in academic administration and international collaboration, she serves as a student ambassador for Circle U at Humboldt University. Combining philosophical inquiry with experimental methods, her work aims to bridge theoretical perspectives with empirical research.
